The Dogberry of the Cabinet-A Weak but Mischievous Officer.

The Dogberry of the Cabinet is Attorney-General Williams, and no lawyer living could manifest more eagerness to write himself down what he undeniably is. His tardy reply for the Government to Governor Brown of Tennessee, in relation to the trial of the Gibson county rioters, is a perfect synopsis of the charlatanism, the perfect conceit, the little tyrant's temper and the interpretation of self-satisfied ignorance that is set up in combination as the legal adviser and agent of the Federal Executive, and to which are recklessly intrusted the issues of life and death for a nation that exists solely on the condition of an equal federation among its separate members. The new Williams Constitution wipes out the labors and exertions of the statesmen of the past with an indifference that demonstrates the most stupendous individual presumption. The Government lawyer who was fairly hooted out of the Federal Court Surfaced Lumber at $42 50 per M ft. at Hartford in a case of great import ance to the nation, is occupying his leisure moments in trampling down States, sowing anew the seeds of revolt, inciting a diabolical war of races. denying statehood to communities that otherwise can enjoy no recognized and rightful existence, and posting Federal troops, by the free permission of the President, wherever he may think them necessary to give meaning to his otherwise senseless decisions. Being held justly in contempt for his lack of legal qualifications, he fancies that it may be supplied by a show of military force. As he believes that troops constitute the essence of State

READ THE FOLLOWING:

SATISFACTORY.

SAN GABRIEL, April 20, 1874.

My little boy, over two years old, has suffered terribly for more than a year from obstruction of the URINARY organs. All means of relief seemed unavailing, until I was advised to consult with Dr. LEAL of Los Angeles. After a critical examination he found and removed a stone from the uretha weighing five grains. Immediately relief followed, and my child is now well.

W. J. JONES.

Gratitude.

Grateful, not only for entire relief from terrible suffering of seven years' standing, but a perfect cure of internal piles by an operation scarcely more painful twan my daily sufferings before the operation. I feel it a duty I owe to those similarly afflicted to give this testimonial of the skillful and efficient treatment of DR. J. H. LEAL, of Los Angeles. Dr. Leal's success is more highly appreciated from the fact that several of the prominent physicians of Los Angelss had treated me without understanding my disease, and of course without success.

SAN GABRIEL, March 14, 1874.

To the Afflicted.

WILMINGTON, March 30, 1874.

Having suffered severely with chronic inflammation of the eyes, I had determined to go to San Francisco for treatment, when I was referred to DR. LEAL, of Los Angeles. Under his care for a single week my eyes are perfectly well, and now my sight is better than it has been for the past ten years.

ALTHOUGH our city election is yet nearly six weeks of, there are already unmistakable indications that the people are alive to the importance of electing municipal officers who are free and will remain free from the cliques and rings that have so long managed the affairs of the city in such a way that the revenue has accomplished but little in the way of improvement. The people of Los Angeles have paid in the shape of taxes an immense sum of money, for which they are beginning to realize they have not received the full value. We shall not be suprised if the election results in the choice of a Mayor and Councilmen whom the people will select with especial reference to their qualifications for the position and the certainty that they are beyond the reach of the two or three and smile for all their neighbors, and corporations that desire to control the municipal government.

The facts of the case as we understand them, are about as follows: Something was said in the columns of the Press concerning Mr. GRAY at which he felt agrieved and commenced a libel suit against the paper. He also made to diffierent parties statements derogatory to the good name and character of the young lady. Hearing of this, Colonel LA GRANGE came down from San Francisco, and calling upon GRAY demanded a written retraction of the offensive language, which being refused, a rencounter took place, in which a ball from a pistol in the hands of Colonel LA GRANGE passed very close to the ribs of GRAY. The communication above referred to claimed that GRAY | monument that is now being erected was unarmed and asked for time to at his tomb, at the Washington and arm himself, which was refused. Domestic Happiness. We are not disposed to look at the dark side of the picture, when we can avoid it; but it is necessary occasionally to do so to bring out the beauties of the bright side by contrast. There is less domestic happiness in the world than most people imagine. There are a great many clever men and women in the world who do not make good husbands and wives. They are industrious, temperate, frugal, intelligent and benevolent, and so far as the world can know, they are good natured and often profess piety. And with all these qualifications they make home very miserable. Kind words and pleasant smiles will bring more solid happiness into the family circle than vast treasures of gold; but how few there are who realize it.

There are many husbands and wives who will weep over the sufferings of humanity and rise at the hour of midnight to visit the sick, and toil their life away to supply their family with everybody says, "What a good wife or husband." But at home they are petulant, easily irritated; speakeross and hasty when there is no occasion to do so. They frown at their own children Some days ago the Star of this city ontained a correspondence from Santa panion a short word when, under the same circumstances they would speak pleasantly to anybody else. This is blind to any fault they posses. It would mortify them exceedingly to inform them that they were not doing all in their power to make home happy. They cannot be convinced that there is any harm in the little hasty words they utter, because they don't clever in so many ways and treat everybody else so civil, that they are li-censed to say what they please at home. The pursuit of happiness ought to be, and is, the aim of life. It is a treasure that all are seeking; and it is where we expect to find that treasure that we bestow the greatest care and labor, always using the best means to obtain the object. As kind words and pleasant smiles are the true

He wears full boots and gauntlets, and a light drapery covers nearly the whole form.

Proceeds of the Ladies' Fair.

Nobody can read the following report of the returns from the Ladies' Fair and doubt the charitable disposition of the Los Angeles public. It will be seen that the total proceeds amount to $1.697 55, a handsome figure when applied judiciously for the support and education of the orphan children in charge of the Sistars of children in charge of the Sisters of Charity. To the ladies who conducted the affair, and were so self-sacrificing in devoting their time, energies and means to the good cause, the chief credit for the splendid result belongs. We return them sincers thanks in behalf of the Sisters of Charity, and of the fotherless and Charity and of the fatherless and motherless children who will thus be kept from want and sunering during the approaching inclement season. Thanks are also due to the people of Los Angeles who have responded so liberally to the demand on their purses for the cause of charity. The receipts of the several departments of the Fair were as follows.

THE BIRTH RECORD.

hand, While the heart was breaking with pain, The Lord hath given and taken away, But "blessed be his name." With two, the record of life was short,
Like a summer's day of joy;
I can see them now, with these dim old eyes,
Miy little girl and boy;
And I think of them when I read these words
in an old, old hook, which saith,
"They were fovely and pleasant in their lives

And lited the partin death."

And divideth not in death." or the other-"my baby" I call him still For the other—"my baby" I call him still—
Though he grew to manhood tail,
When they told me God had taken him,
I felt he had taken my all;
And long I cherished rebellous thoughts,
Before I could learn to say,
"Blessed be the Lord. 'Twas he that gave,
'I'ls he that hath teken away."

—Christian Union. Monica.

The mother of the great Augustine who for fifteen years has so largely moulded the creed of the Church, the devout Monica, had, in her own household, the most bitter trials. Her husband, a proud and sensual pagan, hatannoy her with all manner of heathen orgies in the house, but being a man of violent temper would turn upon her the fury of his passion. Especially did he seek to thwart her religious influence over their son. But through ing and consequent success in busi- cepted the faith of Christ. But his evil example outlived him in his son; and Augustine at twenty, beautiful in person, brilliant in intellect, had all the ungodly impulses of his father's fiery nature, strengthened by indulg-ence and now left without restraint. Monica had given him to God; she had scattered divine truth along his path from infancy upwards; and clinging to the unfailing promises of grace she followed him still with her patient love. One day she stood before her pastor, the tears streaming down her careworn cheeks, and besought him to use his influence with hor to realize use his iufluence with her to reclaim her son. "Wait," said the man of God; "wait patiently; the son of those tears cannot perish." Now a popular teacher of rhetoric; Augustine leaves Carthage, which he had found a "chaldron of unholy loves," to seek his fortune at Milan, winning applause as a rhetorician, he pursued the same godless and dissolute life amid the gayeties and dissipations of the capital. His mother followed him across the sea and into strange lands, and for thirteen years of his

Cur Neighbor's Wife.

Our neighbor's wife is the most remarkable woman we ever saw. She is cheerful, good-natured, intelligent, iudustrious and benevolent almost to a fault—a good church-member, virtuous, and loves her husband and children and lives in peace with her neighbors. But with all these exceldren and lives in peace with her neighbors. But with all these excellent qualities, she is not an agreeable companion. She nearly runs her husband crazy. He is devoted to her and can hardly deny her any request. The fact is, he nearly runs his legs off to gratify her whims. Yes, whims—nothing else. Poor man; I am really sorry for him, he a ways looks so weary and anxious. He never comes in her sight but he is called upon to ge on an errand or do something. The trouble is she takes too much control of everything, and especially of her husband. But this would not be objectionable if she did not change her mind so often; and we would not object to this change of mind if she would keep it to herself; but she wants everybody and especially her husband to change when she does. If she is in a happy mood, she wants her husband to be jolly all the time. If she is melancholy, she thinks it wicked to be always laughing. If she feels like promenading, she is astonished that her hurband is ever inclined to sit down and rest. If she is inclined to lounge and be quiet, she can see no reason for all this restless running to and fro. There are times when she believes everybody ought to dance and be merry; at other times she thinks it sinful to dance or play parlor games. And her poor husband must change as she changes, in every-thing, or she will weep, or feel greatly injured. Take her all in all she is a failure. Yet she lacks but one thing; she has no balance wheel, or governor in her brain. Her heart is all right and we hope she will read this and add a governor to her brain. Есрн.

There was almost a total eclipse of the moon last night at 11 o'clock. The sky was so cloudy that it could only be seen to advantage as an occasional rift cleared away the obstruction to sight. Then the phenomenon in na-ture was singularly striking and beautiful, only a small rim of the now full circle being visible, and the rest covered with what the Express would call an "opaque" shadow.

A birth-day surprise party was given for Rev. A. M. Campbell at the residence of Col. B. L. Peel last evening. A company of about fifty assembled to honor the occasion, and a most enjoyable time was the result. The evening was passed with pleasant social chat, music, and a supper, which was served at half-past 9 o'clock.

A surprise party was given at Sterns' Hall last evening in honor of Miss Bettie Greenbaum and Mr. Isaac Norton. A select company assembled and a very pleasant evening was passed by all.
